Friday, April 24, 2020 - 2:00 to 3:00 PM (central)

During the COVID-19 pandemic, employment and day service providers are having to make extensive changes in order to continue to provide services to individuals with disabilities. One of the key issues is the technical aspects of how to provide services remotely. This session will focus on the various options and technology for delivery of services remotely, and considerations in doing so including: access to technology, use of technology, security and safety considerations, family and guardian issues.
