Social Security Benefits Increase in 2022

In January 2022, the federal benefit rate for recipients of Social Security benefits and Supplemental Security income (SSI) payments will increase by 5.9%. The benefit rate increases when the cost of living rises as measured by the Department of Labor's Consumer Price Index.

Social Security Administration will mail notices throughout the month of December to disability beneficiaries, SSI recipients, representative payees, retirees and those who receive survivor benefits. You can learn more about the increase and how to obtain information about new benefits amounts by clicking here.
